

My husband, a 62 year old male started experiences cold-like symptoms on March 19th, 2021. He saw his primary care physician on or about March 22nd, 2021. His primary care physician diagnosed him with a sinus infection, gave him antibiotics and sent him home. His symptoms progressively got worse so, I drove him to a drive-through Covid testing site in which he tested positive on March 29th, 2021. I then on that day (March 29th), took him to the ER at Lehigh Valley Hospital around 4:00pm. His breathing was becoming difficult. The ER took all of his vitals and informed us that his oxygen saturation rate dropped to 88. He was checked again a couple hours later and it dropped to 85. They admitted him to the ICU and immediately began giving him Remdesivir, beginning with 200mg. They put him on a high-flow nasal cannula (HFNC). He received 4 days of Remdesivir and was put on a ventilator on April 1st, 2021. They induced a coma and paralyzed him. I asked the doctors to administer Ivermectin through his feeding tube and I was told it was against government guidelines for treating Covid. I called hospitals throughout the Northeast and they all stated the same thing. Remdesivir and ventilator was protocol. I found a hospital in Florida that would administer Ivermectin. I secured a private jet to take him there but, Lehigh Valley Hospital told me that he would die during transport. I did research and hired an Attorney from Buffalo, NY that was successfully winning cases against hospitals refusing to administer Ivermectin. His name was Ralph Lorigo, a Western New York lawyer based near Buffalo who handled numerous high-profile lawsuits during the COVID-19 pandemic trying to force hospitals to administer alternative treatments. Two weeks before my husband's death the hospital told me that they could no longer "prone" him as his SAT rates would plummet when they turned him onto his stomach. Proning in the hospital during COVID-19 was the practice of turning a patient from lying on their back onto their stomach (face-down) to help improve oxygen levels in the lungs. The Pulminologist told both myself and my husband's brother that he was not going to recover and that if they would rotate him onto his stomach he would expire (die). The Pulminologist asked if we wanted them to do this to put my husband out of his misery. The Attorney I hired prepared his case and court was scheduled for 9:00am on April 21st, 2021. Lehigh Valley Hospital sent their team of Attorney's. The Judge was ruling in our favor and said she would render her final decision the next morning. My husband died on April 21st at 9:18pm. I found out through speaking to one of his critical care nurses that his feeding tube was removed that day in the early afternoon. The only way to administer Ivermectin was trough a feeding tube. My husband had all stable vitals, stable blood pressure, good CO levels and his organs were functioning normal the entire time he was on the ventilator. We believe that the hospital proned him so that his SAT rates plummeted thus killing him. The feeding tube being removed the day of the court hearing is also very suspect.
