

01/22/26 My mom got sick, we were treating her at home, and she was getting better.

02/09/22 My older sister came from Florida, she had no reference point as to the improvement of her health, but used a pulse oximeter and she was alarmed by the reading being under 100 and decided it best to call 911 to take my mother to the hospital.

When paramedics arrived (4:30 pm) she was seated on an armchair. They gave her oxygen and it immediately invigorated her. We all laughed because that was all she needed. They suggested to take her to the hospital just to check her other vitals. We agreed, since there was no alarm, thinking that after a few tests she would return home. They took her away on a chair (not on a stretcher) holding the oxygen tank. The paramedics' report didn't indicate patient distress, only language barrier.

When we arrived at the hospital I, as her Power-Of-Attorney and French translator, was denied entry to accompany my mom until 4 hours later, when they got her Covid test results, although we were told that one person could stay with her.

Once in her room, to my shock she was lying down, heavily sedated and connected to a respirator. The nurse said that she tested positive. I asked for her viral load, she got flustered and said, "we are not saying she has Covid now, but we saw something, her diagnosis is Covid pneumonia." I asked, "Which variant was detected?" The answer was "We don't know."

-Fraudulent test: In July 2021 the FDA & CDC admitted that the SARS-Cov 2 virus was not isolated. Thus, they could not differentiate who had Covid from who had the flu. Their recommendation was to stop using PCR testing by 12/31/2021. Whatever partial genetic material was used generated a false-positive result at the hospital: it was the start of my mother's demise.

I asked to give her water because I knew she was dehydrated. The nurse said "No, it's not the priority. The priority is oxygenation." I interjected "She did not have water for the last 5 hours; furthermore, the body does not live on oxygen and IV alone." She said, "She won't get water, that's the protocol." Then she walked away. Until she died, seven days later, it was the same denial of hydration & nutrition.

The 1st respiratory therapist lowered the oxygen setting from 100 to 60 to avoid exacerbating her lungs; however, the following therapists would bring it back to 100 which is the hospital protocol, they said. Then he whispered, "Get your mother out of here as fast as you can, they kill people here!" From that point on, we tried to get her out, but everything they did made her worse.

-Negligence: No hygiene care, her lips became very chapped and bled, the rubber of the mask tightly pressing on her face caused a major skin tear. There was no skin protective barrier in place. When my sister noticed her wounds, she cleaned them and applied bandages. She was immobilized on her back 6 days in a row, although we repeatedly asked to have her turned & raised upright. Defective equipment, etc.

-Daily bullying for denying to place a DNR and to ventilate by nurses & doctors.

-Refusal to give us printed copies of that protocol and my mother's treatment plan. They said, "it's difficult to print."

-Administration of lethal cocktail of the following drugs without informed consent such as:

Morphine,

Dexamethasone, Tocilizumab, Vancomycin, Lorazepam, Diltiazem, Decadron, Precedex, etc., in lieu of useful repurposed drugs i.e. Budesonide, Ivermectin, Hydroxychloriquine, etc, and/or high dose vitamins and minerals, which were always denied.
